Using LIBRARYSEARCH
to find a database

How to find a database when you know the title

Databases can help you to search for useful journal articles and other publications in your subject area. To access a specific database, go to the Library home page and click on the databases tab. Pick the initial letter of the specific database or collection, for example A for 'Academic Search Complete'

Search the library

How to find databases for your course

To find out which databases are recommended for your subject area/course, go to the Library home page and click on the Find a database tab.

Click on the drop-down list to 'Browse our databases by area'.

Databases
Search for journal articles, images, market research, legal resources, technical reports, maps - Great Britain, company information, publishing data, newspapers, TV programmes, and other material.

Browse our databases by area

Select from list ▼ Search 🔍 or choose a database beginning with:

A B C D E F G H I J K L M N O P R

This will connect you to the relevant course resource help page which lists the key databases for your subject/course.

LibrarySearch can offer a good starting point as you can do a single search to find many different sources, including books and journal articles. However it does not include the full contents of all our databases and some specialist resources are not covered in LibrarySearch. To find out what databases LibrarySearch covers, go to the LibrarySearch home page and click on Advanced Search underneath the search box.

You can then browse the list of databases included in LibrarySearch.
