Dear Mr. Monteith,

There was one point I forgot to talk to you about on the telephone which is that certain of the stores in the Booker Group in Guyana and Trinidad and possibly in England would like not only to display the winning book and poster of the Booker Prize, but would also like to sell the books.

Now the last thing we would like to do would be to cause trouble under the new book agreement but could you advise me as to whether there would be any objection to any of the Booker outlets selling the books, provided they sell at the cover price or above.

In the Carribean the stores we are talking about would be Department stores which have book departments, but in the U.K. they might include some Supermarkets in selected areas. Would you very kindly give me your comments on this. Obviously it would be nice if they could sell the books but we will be guided by you.

Yours sincerely,

(J.N. Murphy).
