

12th September, 1969.

Miss Jill Mortimer,
25 Regents Park Road,
London, N. W. 1.

Dear Jill,

The immediate questions for our meeting on Monday 15th September are whether or not the rules should be changed, under which heading there are the following three questions:-

- (a) Do we still wish publishers to submit two books or do we give them more latitude. Several publishers somewhat complained about this last year.
- (b) Do we wish to have a short list poster or other point of sale material and if so who should pay for it.
- (c) Do we think that the £500 which the publisher guarantees to spend on promotion should be spent by them or by us.

I have various other thoughts which are perhaps more significant than these but I think these should be for another time when the full committee is there.

Best wishes.

Yours sincerely,

(J. N. Murphy).
