

8 October 1969

Dear Professor Hoggart,

Booker Prize

Thank you very much for the message which I received through your secretary on the telephone this morning. I was delighted to learn that you would be able to lunch in order to meet the other judges at such short notice, and fortunately Friday 17 October has suited everyone else, with the exception of Mr. Ross Higgins, who hopes to be able to meet the judges later in the year.

Booker Brothers have offered us the hospitality of their Conference Room at Bucklersbury House, 83 Cannon Street, E.C. 4 for lunch on that day at 12.30 for 1.00.

Again, many apologies for the short notice and I look forward very much to seeing you on Friday.

Yours sincerely,

Marilyn Edwards
