

Jan Pienkowski, Esq.,
Gallery Five,
14, Ogle Street,
London, W.1.

13th January, 1970.

Dear Jan,

As usual we have left it rather late to think about the actual statue that we should give to this year's Booker Prize winner. You will no doubt remember what happened last year. Do you think there will be time to do a satisfactory new version of the statue at a reasonable price? Do you think we could use one of the cheaper ones, which were not much worse than the 'smart' one. Could you give me your advice on this?

Incidentally, we are having discussions about posters, etc. and will be in touch as soon as possible.

Happy New Year,

Yours ever,

(J.N. Murphy)